Current knowledge puts his attendance at ‘Iolani School from 1879-1882;
At that time, the school was known as Iolani College, often called the Bishop's School, and was under the jurisdiction of the Anglican Church of Hawai‘i;
The school was located on Bates Street in Nu‘uanu;
He attended under the name Sun Tai Chu and Sun Tai Cheong;
He was 1 of 10 Chinese boys;
There were 6 Chinese boarders;
His days included academics such as English, mathematics, science, Latin; Chapel; drill; singing lessons; and tasks such as gardening and cleaning;
On Sundays, the boarders would attend services at St. Andrew’s Cathedral;
For fun students would go to Alekoki and Kapena Falls;
In 1882 he received an award for English Grammar from King David Kalākaua who presided over the school year's closing ceremony;
In general, his time in Hawai‘i is credited with being where he learned about American Democracy and formed his thoughts about government.

Sources:
-- Hawai‘i. Dept. of Public Instruction. "Biennial Report of the President of the Board of Education to the Legislative Assembly." Honolulu, 1880, p. 25. <https://hdl.handle.net/2027/nyp.33433081635785?urlappend=%3Bseq=7>
-- Hawaiian Church Chronicle, September, 1912.